THE SNOW STORM.

Last night, when the lights of the village
First twinkled along the hill,
And teams that were late with their meat-gists
Came toiling up from the till;
Slowly drifting and falling,
Like dust from the Miller's fan,
On the field, and the roads, and the fence,
The winter's storm began.

The boy looked out from the window
Away o'er the dusky plain;
"I am sorry," he cried to his sister,
"Come, let us against the pane."
Drifting it fell, and whirling
Like from where the muffled鼓声;
And the boy went off with his sister,
And shouted, "It snows—it snows!"

Out through the half opened doorway
They peered forth into the night;
It dashed in their breath in their faces,
And darkened the flickering light;
In the dusk they shouted, "O, mother,
The valley is white below,
And the teams that go from the miller's
We scarcely can see for the snow."

Then the voice of the grey-haired grandmother
Was heard through the whispering gloom,
While the dancing flame of the fire-light
Flicked shadows along the room;
"Come hither," she spoke, "my darling!
The fire at the hearth is warm;
Let us think, while the snows are drifting,
Of the shelterless limbs in the storm."

All night on the house-top falling
The snow-flakes fluttered down,
And the church-bells voice grew hoarse,
From the weight of his frosty crown;
But when the first gleam of daylight
Through the darkness began to steal,
He shook it down from his forehead,
And shouted a glad-some shout.

But the hoars of the wind-clad storm-kings
Had triumphed throughout the night,
And the banners and blades of autumn
Were crushed in the bitter fight;
But when the red glory of sunrise
Was unfurled in the East again,
There was smoke on the edge of the hill-top,
And a glimmer of pears on the plain.

And the children, the merry children,
Who saw the lights on the hill,
When teams that were late with their meat-gists
Came toiling up from the till;

When the winter snows are falling,
And the fire on the hearth is warm,
May they think on the pride of the grandmother,
"For the shelterless limbs in the storm."

SKATING INTO MATRIMONY.

What a clear cold day it was! the earth all wrapped in white, sparkling snow—the frozen river gleaming in the distance like a ribbon of steel! How the wind shook the cedar boughs drooping over the stained glass casements of Mr. Arkwright's library—but it could gain no entrance to the pleasant room, with its crimson walls and ruby velvet carpet, and polished granite, beaded high with glowing anthracite.

"Tap, tap!" came softly to the door, and Mr. Arkwright looked up from his book.

"Come in!"

"It's only me, sir! I called to see if Miss Ariel would like to drive down to the river and look at the skaters this afternoon?"

"Look at them!" repeated Mr. Arkwright, good-humoredly. "Why, she's one of the performers, instead of being a spectator! She went down an hour ago, with Tom Havens."

"Tom Havens!"

Mr. Felix Petherbee's whiskered under-jaw dropped—he fingered nervously at his eye-glass.

"Why yes—Tom's rather handy on a pair of skates, and he's been teaching my daughter. I'm glad you are here, Felix," added Mr. Arkwright, "for to tell the truth, I don't exactly like Ariel to be so much with Mr. Havens. Not but what he's a fine, frank fellow, but then you know he depends solely on his profession, and—O, well, you understand all these things, Petherbee!"

"Certainly, sir," said Felix the perfumed.

"And I've suspected this long while that you were a little interested in Ariel—"

"I adore her, sir," said Felix, energetically.

"Then off to the river with you, quicker than a flash, my boy! Of course you skate!"

"O, yes, sir—that is, I've never tried, but it's easy enough! I don't doubt!"

Mr. Arkwright raised his brows rather doubtfully, but Felix had disappeared. The idea of Ariel Arkwright's skating with Thomas Havens drove him wild!

There they were, in the centre of the merry multitude of skaters! Felix recognized them with a venomous pang as he scrambled down the slippery bank—Tom Havens for cap and straight active figure—Ariel Arkwright's golden, flowing curls and brilliant color!

"Changed if I don't have some of this fun!" muttered Felix. "Hello, Dorner! do you know where a fellow can raise a pair of skates?"

"You may take mine, if you choose," growled the young man addressed, who was limping

WHAT WE HAVE DONE AND WHAT WE HAVE NOT DONE:

War is a shifting panorama of events, of which more truly than under any other circumstances, it may be said "that we know not what a day may bring forth." And it is difficult amid the rapid changes that follow in the track of contending armies, and the various and contradictory statements in which the news of what's done is heralded, to take a calm and impartial view of the true state of affairs, so as to do ourselves neither more nor less than justice. While many are blaming the Government or some of its officials, civil or military, many others find ample cause to commend them in terms of highest eulogy. The health of fame is more than ever, tickle. The hero of to-day, before whom the people bowed in the adoration of hero-worship, to-morrow, is hissed from his proud pedestal, or leaves it in anticipation of a rebuff which he fully understands bearks no refusal. It is, under these circumstances, very difficult to render strict justice, which seems to debt for the edifice pen of posthumous history. But there are some things that we do know certainly even now, which we propose to consider. And our first inquiry is, what have we done, as a Nation, in the prosecution of this war. We believe that we answer this truthfully when we say that we have expanded a little army of 34,000 men all told, into a splendidly equipped army of 800,000 men, which may not unexpectedly soon reach a million. Our navy, from 12 vessels in commission, and 76 all told, we have expanded to a few, albeit in completion, of 427 vessels of war, carrying 3,268 guns—a force equal to that of any nation raised in so short a time and under our peculiar circumstances.

Nearly three thousand miles of sea coast, in the possession of the rebels at the commencement, is held conquered, and either garrisoned, governed by military supervision, or held fast under the guns of our navy. The Mississippi, "the main artery of the central valley of the Union, with its principal tributaries, embracing many thousands of miles of inland navigation once in the possession of rebels, has been, in a great measure, restored to national control, and New Orleans, by far the most opulent and important commercial city of the rebellion, with numerous cities of inferior rank, have been recovered to the Union." And, amid all the disadvantages of our position in the beginning, our gigantic efforts have astonished foreign nations, and challenged their respect as well as admiration.

As an offset to all this, the rebels cannot, to a river or a city wrested from us, by Raids, robberies, burnings, and assassinations committed after the manner of Indians, surprised and defenseless, is the success. Though not devoid of the bravery of desperation on the part of the rebels, we have conquered nothing, although not been all the time without a struggle, "it has a more complete effect upon the repressive value of our troops."

On the contrary there are some things we have not done—and what are they? We have not as a Government always been up to the loyalty, determination and self-sacrificing spirit of the people. We have failed to have always, or occasionally, the right man in the right place. We have suffered peculation in high places of State, or worse still, to put our brave soldiers into the very jaws of hell and destruction. We have brought upon ourselves all the disasters we have suffered by our blunders and errors, and have, not so we should, profited by our dearly bought experience, and improved upon the past. Vieckburg and Galveston, bring up the rear of our series of omissions, and their disasters are mournful warnings still ringing in our ears, the sad story of what we have not done. What the precise omissions were in these last instances, we do not pretend to say—but this much we do know, that whatever they were, they were bad ones—want of proper reinforcements leaving an unimportant one of them. But still, what in what we have done, we have not quite exult our pride or to justify boasting in what we have not done we have no special humiliation. Great military skill born of centuries, not of decades, had but one Wellington, and one Bonaparte in all their long experience, not a century old, had had, and must hide her time, all of centuries. We would fain be in the retrospect as well as in the prospect, and thank God if might is right, to also, right is might, and the pioneer nation of the world's liberators will not be left to sink ignominiously into the grave of Nations, and to bequeath to history only an inglorious record.

INFAMOUS ATTEMPT TO DEBAUCH THE STATE AND GENERAL GOVERNMENT.—A German, named Luz, Captain of a company of Germans, enlisted in 2nd R. I. Cavalry, 104 in number, entered into an understanding with these men to enlist and after receiving their bounties, to desert. These 104 men were all enlisted within ten days. This infamous plot was fortunately discovered and on Saturday the whole company were sent down to Fort Adams, as they supposed for a mere convenient change of barracks and the Steamer Perry landed them at the Fort "all right," where they are now in charge of Lt. Col. Sanderson, who will hold them secure from desertion or insubordination. Let the ring-leader of this infamous scheme be arrested Monday by officer Dean, and conveyed in the Steamer Perry to Providence, and safely locked up.

CONTRACT FOR THE NEW POST OFFICE.—We call attention to the advertisement of Mr. Post Master Coggeshall, for proposals for materials and labor for converting the lower part of the Custom House into a Post Office. Proposals will be received at the Post Office on Tuesday, Jan. 20th, until 3 o'clock p. m. Specifications of the proposed plans, can be examined at the same place, on Friday, Saturday and Monday, Jan. 16th, 17th and 19th, by those who are interested in the matter of the advertisement.

PHOTOGRAPHY.—We call attention to the advertisement for classes in Photography, Short Hand Writing, by H. M. Monsanto, A. B. Mr. Monsanto is also professor of the French, German, and Spanish languages, Mathematics, Book-keeping and Penmanship. Mr. Monsanto has been a sojourner with us for some time, and is well known as a gentleman well qualified in the various branches which he professes to teach.

Look on to him.—Mr. Robert Seale is duly authorized to collect bills and transact other business for the Daily News Office.

OUR ARMY CORRESPONDENCE.
LETTER FROM "SENT" WHO HAS BEEN MAKING A VISIT IN RICHMOND &c.

CAMP PAROLE ANNAPOLIS Mo. 3
January 9th 1863

Date News—Though I cannot tell you much about the Regiment, it may be interesting to you readers to hear how tried of Bonaparte's delays a select party of us spent the holidays in a visit to Richmond where we put up in a colony of the Libby Hotel which house of entertainment is now pretty well known at the "North."

A small party, eleven in number, started on the morning of Dec. 24th for a scout in the direction of Warrenton and after a hard day's journey arrived at Warrenton Junction shortly after dark and encamped in the Woods very near where our Regiment encamped last March when we first took the field and is vividly remembered as "Mud Camp." We endured there at that time a severe storm of snow and rain which lasted several days and was a hard breaking in for our boys, just from comfortable quarters in Washington and aggravated by going without food or forage.

On the 24th we met with no rebels though as we were Americans to all we were watched all day by a small party who discovered us as soon as we left our outside pickets but lost sight of us towards night and thought we had returned to our own lines, the only incidents of the first day were an occasional scamper after some solitary horseman who on being overhauled proved to be a citizen and meeting a party of our own men about our size when being mutually suspicious our maneuvers resembled the meeting of two strange dogs on some lonely road. Arrived at Warrenton Junction we left the road and went some distance into the woods and found a deep gully where we made a small fire and cooked our coffee and fed our tired horses and then stretched ourselves on the ground with no covering but our overcoats and slept soundly till morning occasionally disturbed by the noise of the rebels.

The schooner Elizabeth and Helen, with vegetables and packages for Rhode Island soldiers on the Rappahannock sailed this morning. Mr. N. F. Pott was the original mover of this enterprise. Messrs. Daniel Joslin, the Harbor Master, and Rolt S. Manchester, Jr., took charge of the packages, attended and have devoted much time and labor in getting the vessel ready to sail. The following named gentlemen contributed money for the carrying out of the enterprise:

Geo. W. Hollett, $100; Orzay Tait & Co., $100; James T. Smith, $100; Earl P. Mason, $50; Amos D. Smith, $50; Seth Padeford, $50; A. Angell, $50; A. Mautz, $25; Robt. Waterman, $25; Eliza Dyer, $25; Wm. Foster, $10; B. M. Jackson, $15; Taylor, Symonds & Co., $10; H. J. Kendall, $10; H. Bullion, $10; H. B. Metcalf & Co., $5; J. A. Hearley, $5; D. C. Jencks, $5.

The following promotions have been made in the 1st Regiment Rhode Island Cavalry:

First Lieutenant Frank Allen to be Captain. Second Lieutenant Edwin Vaughn to be First Lieutenant.

Second Lieutenant Oss C. Wyatt to be First Lieutenant.

Twenty-seven convalescent soldiers came up from the U. S. Hospital at Portsmouth Grove, this morning on the Perry, having been ordered to their regiments.

The ship Weymouth, Capt. Seavey, was wrecked on Prates Shoal, in the China Sea, on the 30th of October. Mr. D. S. Tappan, of Rhode Island, was the only person drowned. He was a passenger.

The funeral of General Albert C. Greene was solemnized from the residence of R. M. Larmar, Esq., this morning at 11 o'clock, and was attended by the Justice of the legal profession, Rev. Mr. Diane, Associate Rector of St. John's Church, officiated. (Prov. paper, Jan. 13.)

Messrs. A. & W. Sprague are said to have found in a hole of cotton, the other day, a large piece of a grindstone, a common granite boulder that would weigh nearly one hundred pounds, and a large log of wood, for which they paid fifty-two cents per pound. —Vivat Britannia.

After a short delay we remonstrated and were taken to Hellier's Ford where we crossed the river and were turned over to first North Carolina Cavalry and we were started off on foot for their camp distant some fifteen miles, we reached there late in the evening; on our route we were pretty well treated by the North Carolina boys who were having a good time keeping Christmas and allowed us to partake of their good cheer; their camp was near the Rappahannock river and only two or three miles from where our Regiment was camped last August near Beaufort Ford just before the battle of Cedar Mountain. We remained in this camp till the morning of the 28th when we left for Richmond. During our stay we fared just as they did and were well treated in every respect; a good deal of argument was carried on at the guard house on the great question of the war but always with good temper and without the slightest personal bitterness of feeling! I do not wish to mislead you by the term "guard house" into thinking there was any house or even tent there, with the exception of some few shacks of baughs, the rebel army dispense with such articles altogether, and yet are in excellent health, much more so than our own; they are miserably clothed but tolerably fed having rations of flour and beef given them. Since the battle of Fredericksburg they are in excellent spirits and look for a speedy termination of the war but without exception express the strongest determination to fight it out long or short till they are successful.

I was particularly struck with the kind and gentlemanly behavior of the officers towards the men and with the absence of wrangling and profanity among them.

We left this camp at 3 o'clock on Sunday morning and went to Mitchell's Station another old camping ground of our Regiment where we took the cars for Richmond; we travelled in first class cars and had a very pleasant day's journey as the weather was remarkably fine; the cars were full and there seemed to be a great deal of way travel, every body seemed to be in excellent spirits and to have lots of money, we had much conversation with different gentlemen and the desire to argue the question with the Yankees was very common.

The most common topic was the outrages committed by our soldiers against the persons and property of private citizens, and unfortunately there is too much ground for their complaints. At Gordonsville we were examined by the Provost Marshal and both here and at Richmond our money looked over to see if we had any contraband confederate scrip.

After dark we arrived at Richmond and was conducted immediately to the Libby Prison and paraded and then placed with some two hundred others in a tobacco ware house adjoining. There were then about four hundred Federal prisoners at Richmond including a large number of wounded men who were brought from Fredericksburg and before we left four or five hundred more were brought in.

The room in which we were confined was a large loft about 130 by 50 feet and at night was cold as most of us were without blankets or overcoats; our rations consisted of a small loaf of bread and very small pieces of meat per diem; we were kept here till the morning of the 6th inst., owing to some unavoidable delay in the flag of truce boat in calling for us; she had been due for three weeks and the delay was unpleasant.

On the morning of the 6th we were marched down to the cars and sent to City Point by way of Petersburg and after a hard day's journey arrived at Warrenton Junction shortly after dark and encamped in the Woods very near where our Regiment encamped last March when we first took the field and is vividly remembered as "Mud Camp." We endured there at that time a severe storm of snow and rain which lasted several days and was a hard breaking in for our boys, just from comfortable quarters in Washington and aggravated by going without food or forage.

TO HORSE OWNERS.

Dr. Sweet's Infallible Liniment

FOR HOUSES

Invaluable for any and all varieties of Lemons, &c., arising from Sputums, Bruises or Wounding, in effect, is equal to certain Balsoms or Saddle Galls, Scrotal, &c., &c., as it will cure speedily. Spasms and Rheumatisms may be easily prevented and cured by their violent spasms, but confirmed cases are beyond the possibility of a curative cure. None of the kind, however, is in desperate or hopeless but it may be relieved by this Liniment, and its salutary application will remove the Lemons, &c., and cure the horse to travel with comparative ease.

Every horse should have this remedy at hand, so to daily cure the first appearance of Lemons, &c., &c., or any other disease.

Dr. Sweet's Infallible Liniment

is the best remedy for Sores in the known world.

Dr. Sweet's Infallible Liniment

has been used by more than a million people, and all prove it.

Dr. Sweet's Infallible Liniment

is truly a "blessed in need," and every family should have it at hand.

SOMETHING NEW FOR

CHOIRS, SINGING-SCHOOLS & CONVENTIONS.

THE VOICE OF PRAISE:

A Volume of Sacred Music, with New and Attractive Features.

RESONATING IN THE

MOST DESIRABLE WORLDS OF THE KING.

FOR THE USE OF THE

CHOIR, SINGING-SCHOOL, MUSICAL CONVENTION

and the HOME-CIRCLE.

BY E. W. WALTERS.

This Book is not one of a series of Triumphant publications made to supply a market artificially created, but is the compilation of the best fruits of the labor of its author in elevation and composition, during a period of thirty years devoted to Sacred Music.

Special attention is directed to the fact that this book is printed from large clear type, so large and not so heavy that it can be read by any person who has but half an hour to spend. We have, therefore, a handsome, open page, without one part on a staff, except in a few standard, well-known tunes selected for congregational use.

BY ALL QUACKERS ARE NOT IGNORANT.

Notwithstanding the foregoing facts are known to some Quack Doctors and Nostrum Makers, yet, regardless of the life and health of others, the great those among them who are ignorant, and who are their imitators, copy from several books much that is written in the original and most difficult, and various of the Diplomas, how obtained, unknown; yet, only, assisting and advertising in names of those inserted in the Diplomas, but to further their imposture assume names of other most celebrated Physicians long since dead. Neither be deceived by QUACK NOSTRUM MAKERS.

ARRIVAL OF THE CHINA OFF SANDY

HOOK.

SANDY HOOK, Jan. 14, 1862.

The Steamer China from Liverpool Saturday,

3d, via Queenstown. 14th inst., has just passed this point.

COTTON.—The sales of cotton on Friday, the 2d

int., at Liverpool, were 5,000 bales, including

2,000 to speculators and exporters. The market is dull. There was a decline of 2d from the last highest quotations and closes steady.

TRADE, &c., &c.—The Manchester market was firm but quiet. The breadstuffs market is quiet and firm. There has been no regular market since Tuesday. Richardson, Spence & Co. quote Bacon downward, with a decline of 1s. Lard ear-tier. Tallow quiet and steady.

LARD.—Contracts closed at 92d 9d for money.

The Bullion in the banks of England has increased £500,000 sterling. The political news is generally of an unimportant character. A United States man-of-war is still watching the Sunder of Gibraltar. Liverpool Produce Market, sugar quiet and steady. Butter inactive. Coffee no sales.

RICE inactive. Asbes steady, pots 31s., pearl 32s.

Cotton oil easier. Petroleum quiet at 21s. 9d.

Linen: MARKET.—Breadstuffs, sugar, sugar

inactive, coffee, no sales, tea quiet, &c., &c., &c.

The British & Foreign Produce, Especials of Pepper-mint, Wintergreen, Wormwood, &c., Syrups of various kinds.
